

DeKalb Public Library Computer and Internet Policy

POLICY STATEMENT:

The DeKalb Public Library provides access to a broad range of information sources, including those available through the internet. The Board of Trustees recognizes the importance of the internet as a means of information-sharing and communication.

While the internet can be used for a variety of purposes, the library actively supports only those functions that relate to its mission and services. With the exception of the library's website, all of the information found on the internet has been generated outside the library. Some internet sites may contain inaccurate, incomplete, outdated, unsecured, offensive and/or controversial material. All internet resources accessible through the library are provided equally to all users, with the understanding that it is the user's responsibility to demonstrate good judgment, respect for others, and appropriate conduct while using library resources. All rights and responsibilities of internet access pertain both to library equipment and that owned by users of the library's network.

The Board of Trustees authorizes the Library Director to establish reasonable procedures governing the use of the library's computer resources and internet access.

DeKalb Public Library Computer and Internet Procedures

PROCEDURES:

- All use of the DeKalb Public Library's computer and internet resources, including wi-fi on personal devices, is subject to the policy and procedures contained in this document as well as the library's Code of Conduct.
- The library does not guarantee privacy of any internet sessions (whether via wi-fi or library computers), nor is it responsible for the security of information transmitted and received during such sessions. The library assumes no responsibility for damage, theft, or loss of any kind to personal information, equipment, software, or data files. Patrons are encouraged to not share private personal or financial information using library computers or wi-fi. Staff members may not assist patrons with entering private personal or financial information.
- The library reserves the right to monitor computer and internet use to ensure compliance with library policies, and to classify any action, access, or operation on the internet as inappropriate.
- Library computers and internet access may not be used to access pornographic, violent, or illegal material, or to commit illegal acts. Patrons who commit illegal acts involving library computer stations and internet access may be subject to prosecution by local, state, or federal authorities. Indication or evidence of possible illegal activity may be reported to law enforcement authorities by the library, and such communication may also be used as evidence in any criminal investigations and/or prosecutions. It is the responsibility of the patron to respect copyright laws and software licensing agreements. Library staff will not knowingly assist in the commission of illegal acts.
- Library computers and internet access may not be used for hacking; bullying; any attempt to degrade or disrupt the computer or system through viruses or other means; any attempt to change software settings, files, or equipment belonging to the library, other users, external networks, or websites; using another patron's login credentials; or sharing login credentials with other patrons.
- The library filters internet access on computers intended for minors in accordance with federal law. Adults wishing to use filtered internet access may choose to have their usage filtered when registering.
- The library supports the right of all patrons to access information and will not deny access to electronic information networks based on age. Parents may choose to limit or deny their children internet access.
- The library recognizes that the internet may contain material that is inappropriate for children. Parents and caregivers are expected to monitor and supervise their children's use of the internet, and are responsible for the internet information selected or accessed by their children. Parents and caregivers should also be aware that wireless internet access is unfiltered, and are encouraged to place appropriate controls or restrictions on any personal devices that children may use to access the internet at the library. Patrons under the age of 18 may not give out personal information on library computers.
- DeKalb residents must have a library card to use library computers, and may not owe more than $5.00 in fines or other charges. Non-residents may purchase an internet card for $5.00 per year to use library computers.
- As a courtesy, non-residents may be issued one 15-minute guest pass per day. DeKalb residents are not eligible for guest passes. Patrons who abuse the use of guest passes may be denied their use at staff discretion.
- Computer sessions ordinarily last 3 hours, and may be extended in 1-hour increments as long as there is no wait to use the machines. If there is a line to use the computers a patron whose session ends must vacate the computer. They may then register for another session to use when another computer becomes available. The number and length of access sessions available per day, per patron, and reservation procedures on library equipment may be established or modified by library staff at their discretion.
- All library computers shut down 15 minutes before the library closes. Sessions will not be allowed to extend past this time.
- Computer sessions will give a warning when a session is about to expire. Once a session has ended there is no way to retrieve unsaved files or documents, and files cannot be saved to library computers. Patrons should save their work regularly to a flash drive or to cloud-based storage such as email.
- Printing costs are $ 0.10 per page for black and white copies, and $ 0.50 per page for color copies.
- Adults may use computers in Youth Services only if they are accompanied by children.
- Two patrons may share one computer if they agree to do so and their behavior and conversation do not disturb other patrons or library staff.
